UKIAH REPUBLICAN-PRESS

MENDOCINO VALLEY SCENES. COUNTY BUILDINGS. MENDOCINO LOGGING AND COAST SCENES

VOL. XXX. UKIAH, MENDOCINO CO., CAL.: FRIDAY, MAY 4, 1906. NO. 34

THE POLITICAL POT IS BOILING

It was stated in the PRESS several weeks ago that the friends of W. S. Van Dyke of Covelo were urging him to enter the fight for nomination for tax collector on the Republican ticket and at last he has consented to allow his name to be presented to the convention. Mr. Van Dyke has long been a resident of Round valley and is well known and well thought of throughout the county and especially in home precincts. He is a man of sterling worth and has never before asked for a nomination to any political office although having devoted years of his life to the interests of the Republican party. He is a man in whom the voters can place their entire confidence and is well qualified for the position to which he aspires. Should he receive the nomination and be elected there is no doubt that he would serve the people with credit to himself and honor to the party.

A. N. Rawles of Boonville announces himself in this issue as a candidate for the office of sheriff of this county on the Republican ticket and subject to the decision of the Republican county convention. Mr. Rawles is a wellknown rnd prosperous rancher of Anderson valley and descends from a line of Republican ancestors and has himself been a worker in the ranks for years. He has many friends throughout the county who will welcome his announcement as they have been urging him to enter the fight for some time past. It is safe to say that should Mr. Rawles receive the nomination at the hands of his party and be elected he would make an ideal official and that his reign would be a terror to the evil doers of the land.

E. E. Holdrook was down from Potter this week and has decided to make his announcement for county recorder, which will be found in another column. Gene, as he is familiarly known is one of the young Republicans to whom the barty owes its success and his friends have been urging him to announce himself and he has at last yielded to their wishes. He is a young man of sterling worth and is thoroughly competent to discharge the duties of the office to which he aspires. For a number of years he has held a responsible position in the store of J. M. Roberts at Potter and is well liked and thought of by every one in the valley. His popularity there is shown by the fact that he has held the position of town treasurer for several terms. At the last election he was placed on the ticket without opposition and the vote he received was a handsome tridute to his standing in the community. He is young and energetic and should he receive the nomination at the hands of the party and be elected he would make an official of whom the county might well feel proud.

Banks are Open

All the banks in Ukiah opened yesterday for business. There was little demand for money and each of the banks closed in the evening with more money in its vaults than it had at the opening of the day. The panicky condition has subsided, and the banks will continue business without further interruption. There was at no time any question of the solvency of the Ukiah banks, or for that matter, any bank in the State, as financial conditions were never better in California than they were just prior to the recent calamity.

New Residents

Thomas McCarthy and family of Kern county who moved here a couple of weeks ago have bought the Barlow place south of town and intend making this their home in future. They appear to be very nice people and will be an addition to the city. Mr. McCarthy contemplates a number of improvements at his new home and will make it one of the most comfortable country residences around here.

UKIAHITES MISS THE DAILY PAPERS

Daily papers are still a treat and instead of arriving here at noon as formerly they now come on the evening train. Not enough are being received for the rehular subscribers and everyone who is fortunate enough to get a copy pays his nickle. The dailies will all resume publication at the earliest possible moment at San Francisco, all being published for the present at Oakland. The following from the Call shows the spirit of the San Francisco press:

The Call believes is San Francisco. While the battle with the flames that wiped out the city-that-was still waged, plans were laid for the building of a new and greater Call. In spite of the general disorder following the fire and the destruction of the entire plant, the Call has been published every day. The plans, hurriedly made in the thick of the conflict, have now matured. As an evidence of its faith in the new San Francisco, the Call has planned the assemblyinw of a new plant of the most complete newspaper equipment on the Pacific Coast. Orders have been placed and rapidly as human energy can turn out the work and railroads bring it across the continent the Call's new equipment will be installed. Then the Call will be ready to give substantial evidence of the sincerity of its present declaration of faith and to take its place as the factor for the best newspaper expression of the spirit which will make the new San Francisco the most beautiful city on earth and one of the world's most important commercial centers.

Schedule Will Be Changed.

According to the Mendocino Beacon hereafter there will only be a stage every other day between this city and Mendocino. It has the following to say regarding the advertising for the mail contract: The government is again advertising for bids on the Ukiah-Mendocino contract. All the bids are sent to the second assistant postmaster general accompanied by a bond of $3500. The service is to be three times a week each way. The summer schedule allows thirteen hours and the winter fourteen hours. Three intervening postoffices are served, Orrs, Comptche and Melbourne.

Was on Guard Duty.

Carl Hoag, a student at the University of California, came up Sunday on his way home to Boonville. He reports a strenuous time in San Francisco and was on guard duty there with the rest of the university boys. The semester was brought to an abrupt close by the excitement and the university will not open until August. He reports that conditions in San Francisco are greatly improved and that there is now plenty for everyone to eat.

Will Move East

D. C. Heger who lost his shirt factory in the San Francisco fire has decided to open up in the east. As most of the material used was purchased in the east anyway this will be much more convenient for him and he will be able to fill his orders promptly and ship the finished product to this coast.

Building Notes

It is reported that Mr. Rudee will commence immediately to repair his building on State street. A force of men are at work bracing the interior so that the south wall can be taken out and rebuilt. Mrs. White will also immediately commence to rebuild her building and will have it ready for occupancy at the earliest possible moment.

Bankers Visit San Francisco.

President J. M Barker and Secretary J. H. Mannon of the Savings Bank of Mendocino County visited San Francisco last week to get a line on the banking situation.

San Francisco And Chicago Fires

The following clipping from the San Francisco Chronicle of May 1 gives a very good estimate of the loss of the San Francisco fire, and also compares it with the great Chicago fire:

The great Chicago fire with which the San Francisco conflagration is compared destroyed 17,450 buildings, rendered 98,860 persons homeless and caused a loss of $196,000,000, of which $53,000,000 represented the value of the buildings destroyed, $58,710,000 the value of the personal effects, and the remainder of the value of the business stocks, produce and manufactures of every description. The area burned was 2124 acres or nearly three and one third square miles, about four miles in length and from one to one and a half miles wide in some points.

The figures with regard to San Francisco's disaster are not yet made up, but it is estimated that the loss of the property runs beyond $200,000,000 and that the homeless number 200,000. The burned district here is four square miles. In the Chicago fire 250 persons perished in the flames or lost their lives from exposure. The loss of life in the San Francisco catastrophe considerably exceeds this Chicago record.

The duration of the San Francisco fire was greater than that of Chicago's historic blaze. The flames which devastated Chicago were started by the overturning of a lamp in a district built up exblusively of wood about 9 o'clock at night on Sunday, October 8, 1871. According to tradition the lamp was kicked over by a cow. All conditions favored the spread of the fire. The season had been very dry, the rainfall in Chicago having been only 28½ per cent of the average. There was a strong southwest wind, which was made a sirocco by the heat and which veered frequently, carrying the flames in all directions except west. The city fire department was large and efficient, but it had been exhausted by an unusually extensive fire on the preceding Saturday. Wooden buildings were scattered throughout the entire city and they served as torches to kindle new fires. During Sunday night and the greater part of Monday the conflagration raged, razing great blocks of houses. It was checked at last by explosions of gunpowder in a line of buildings on the south of the fire, all that there was to ignite on the north having been consumed.

In San Francisco the fire department was unable to cope with the fire because the water supply was shut off, the mains having been broken in places by the earthquake, and the flames here, too, were checked finally by the use of explosives. The fire here lasted for more than three days, beginning shortly after 5 o'clock in the morning.

In Chicago there was an insurance of $88,634,122 on the destroyed property and of this sum about one-half was paid. The insurance on the property lost in the city is estimated at between $100,000,000 and $125,000,000.

A vast system of relief was organized in Chicago, and the contributions from various parts of the United States and from foreign countries aggregated $4,999,782, of which nearly $500,000 came from England. These funds were in addition to the supplies of food, clothing and other necessaries which were given. Temporary homes were provided for nearly 40,000 persons and the poorer classes of Chicago were probably never so comfortable as within two or three years after the great fire.

The work of rebuilding Chicago was accomplished with marvelous rapidity, affording an object lesson of what energy and optimism can effect. The prediction was made immediately after the fire that it would require at least ten years to restore the buildings which had been destroyed, but within three years the city had buildings of equal capacity and of double the value of those which had been lost. The work of reconstruction was begun almost before the cinders were cold, and the people seemed to gain new life and ambition from the disaster. The fire limits were extended to prohibit the erection of any buildings other than stone, brick or iron structures in a larger area than before and this regulation was afterward made more strict. Within the first year after the fire buildings which cost $40,133,600 were in course of construction, and the spirit of improvement which was developed became lasting.

Business and population increased in spite of the huge disaster, the ratio of growth being greater than it had been in previous years. So solid was the prosperity of Chicago that in 1873 when the memorial financial panic occurred, the banks of that city alone were not compelled to issue certificates of deposit, but continued steadily to pay out current funds. The value of realestate aslo rapidly advanced in Chicago.

The same spirit of enterprise that made Chicago rise superior to misfortune is being shown here, and the results will doubtless be the same.

Death Calls Another.

L. D. Hargis sr. passed away last Thursday afternoon after a lingering illness and was buried in the Odd Fellow's cemetery Saturday under the auspices of that order of which he had been a member for over a quarter of a century. He was born in Kentucky seventy-one years ago and moved to California in the early days. For a number of years he was pastor of the M. E. church, south, of this city from which church the funeral was held. He was a good citizen and his demise will be regretted by a host of friends. A wife and seven children survive him —Frank, L. D., Oscar, Mrs. Ford, Gussie, Thursa and Ora—all of whom were present at the funeral except the first two mentioned who were unable to get here in time.

Wellknown Coastar Dead.

The Point Arena Record says: On Tuesday, April 24, 1906, Ole Olsen, an old and wellknown resident of Point Arena, died after a lingering illness. Deceased was a native of Norway and was 70 years of age last September. He was married forty-one years ago, the widow surviving him.

Realty Notes.

C. W. Heap has sold his mountain ranch of 160 acres near Low Gap to A. L. Newton of Fruitvale, Alameda county. About half the place is covered with redwood timber and there are thirty or forty acres in orchard, grain and garden and is well improved. Being located on the coast side of the summit but out of the fog belt with a southern exposure, it is a desirable country home and Mr. Newton is very much pleased with his purchase. Mr. Heap expects to have his saw mill in operation soon and will probably buy timber on the land he has just sold. The sale was made by J. M. Owen, the local realestate man.

Fort Bragg Rebuilding.

According to the Fort Bragg Advocate nearly all the buildings in that city that were ruined by the fire will be immediately rebuilt, some of the merchants already having resumed business in hastily constructed buildings. It does not appear that many of the buildings will be of brick that popular material being tabooed on account of the damage done by the recent earthquake.

UKIAH RESPONDS TO RELIEF CALLS

The people of Ukiah are doing good work for the relief of the sufferers in San Francisco and the committee of ladies who had the matter in charge are especially deserving of credit for the work. They are Mrs. W. P. Thomas, Mrs. Wm. Held, Mrs. Edwards, Mrs. Rhodes, Mrs. W. D. White and Mrs. Butts. They have shipped box after box of clothes to Oakland, San Francisco and Tiburon and several tons of provisions were shipped to Tiburon and Santa Rosa It is stated this was the first outside aid that Santa Rosa received. The ladies aid societies of all the churches have either made articles for the sufferers or will do so next week. One of the ladies clubs is also making complete outfits for nurses and a number of individuals have also sent articles for hospitals and infants.

A large amount of clothes has also been sent to individuals and the Red Cross society. The finance committee has turned over $100 to the ladies to purchase materials for the manufacture of articles of clothing. Several families and a number of individuals who came to this city have been aided and transportation secured for them to places where they had friends.

Although the papers state that there is an abundance of everything in the city letters from private individuals indicate that there is still a shortage of clothing. It is also reported that there is still trouble in getting things properly distributed on account of the scarcity of teams. The finance committee has collected considerrble money but there is still a great deal that has been promised that has not come in. They earnestly request that this be paid to either E. J. T. Woodward, T. M. Cleland or Rufe Lucas immediately so that it may be forwarded.

They Did Not Care

The following marriage licenses have been issued since the earthquake showing that it takes more than a temblor to discourage cupid: L. V. McFarland and Ada Bee Baily of Ukiah; Mark L. Parrish and Lizzie Pink of Fort Bragg; Charles C. Yoell and Olive M. Arnold of Fort Bragg; John N. Ranta'la and Amelia Jokela of Fort Bragg; Ernest H. Brown of Monroe and Maude L. Day of Hardy; George H. Reed and Pelagie M. Joffie of Elk; Charles R. McGoun and Eva Winall of Ukiah.

Lost Valuable Horse.

T. A. Templeton came down from Baker springs Monday and reports the loss of his fine imported mare. She was turned out in the corral and in a fit of playfulness ran into the fence and broke her neck. The impact was so great that Mr. Templeton heard the shock at the house. He feels particularly bad over the loss as she was a very fine animal.

Good Hop Prospect

Tom Farrance, manager of the Horst ranch at Hopland, was in town this week on a business visit. He reports that this is the finest weather ever seen for hops and that they are growing fine. He has 360 acres under cultivation and expects a record crop.

Opens Insurance Business

O. E. Ganter has opened offices in the old law building west of the hall of records and will be able to attend to any fire or life insurance for his friends. He will also be in a position to give attention to any typewriting that may be needed.

A New Stage.

D. B. Parks is busy this week trimming one of the coaches for the Overland Transportation company. It is one of their seventeen passenger wagons and will be used on the line from Sherword north. The company is so well satisfied with Mr. Park's work that he handles all their stages.

BUSINESS COLLEGE IS CLOSED

President C. W. Mathews of the Ukiah Business college awarded the diplomas to his classes last Saturday evening, the ceremony taksng place in the college rooms and only a few friends and relatives of the scholars being present. It was at first intended to have a social evening but on account of the recent disaster in in San Francisco the simpler ceremony was decided upon. All, however, report a very enjoyable time, the only sad feature of the evening being the announcement of President Mathews that he would discontinue the school as his health was so poor that he could not stand the work.

It is understood that about twenty five pupils had been expecting to attend next year and to these also the news that the college will be closed came as a disappointment. Mr. Mathews had previously been forced to retire from college life but thought that he had so regained his health that he would be able to follow his chosen profession. The three years of college work he has had in this city were sufficient to amply demonstrate that he was a first class teacher and the positions held by his graduates is also a handsome testimonial to his ability but the confinement has been too much for him.

His ability as an accountant is unquestionable and he has been employed as expert for the town and several business houses and at present one of the experts in the employ of the board of supervisors having supervision of the bills that are filed. Mrs. Mathews who had charge of the shorthand department is also a teacher of rare ability and has instructed some scholars of which she may well feel proud. They have not yet definitely decided as to what they will do but Mr. Mathews expects to take his family to his ranch near Potter for the summer and return to this city to complete the expert work for the county for the year ending in July.

To return to the graduating exercises, however, the class, as a token of their esteem for their teachers, presented Professor and Mrs. Mathews with a handsome set of silver knives, forks and spoons for every conceivable purpose. The set was in a handsome pink lined case and is highly prized by them and came as a genuine surprise as they had no idea that the class had purchased them any present at all. Those graduated from the business department were:

Perle Ornbaun, Estell Bauer, Agnes Randall, Lucy Howard, Nellie Howard, Victor Hildreth, Ray Cox, Gus Laurence, Winnie Cox, Elmer Toney, Vernon Howell, Jas. Davis, Olof Morby. Short hand department: Mrs. Olie Henderson, Mae Mason, Wm. Evans.

Labor Question Relieved.

The situation of the local bastile was relieved last week by the appearance of Constable William Ware of Fort Bragg with a prisoner. It is needless to say that he received a warm welcome from Janitor Gibson as owing to the good behavior of the people of Mendocino county the number of prisoners in the county jail had dwindled down to one and he will have served his sentence this month which would have left the janitor without any assistants. He would have been up against the real thing and would have been compelled to work overtime to draw his salary.

Death of a Baby

Freda L., the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert F. Thomas, died at their home in this city Tuesday. The little one had always been sickly. She was born on September 18, 1905. The funeral took place from the family residence yesterday afternoon at 2:30. The sorrowing parents have the sympathy of their many friends in their bereavement.

THE SITUATION

NOW that that the excitement has calmed down in some degree, it is well to look matters in the face and prepare to attend to business as usual.

The large amount of merchandise destroyed will probably make a shortage in some lines for a time, especially in Spring and Summer goods.

Fortunately we had purchased an unusually large stock and have it right here. We also have several large invoices on the way, that will probably arrive by the time this is in print.

Prices will be Just the Same as Usual

We suggest early buying in Dress Goods, Shoes, Clothing, Hats, Etc., for those who want the first selections, but we will NOT run out of goods.

GROCERY DEPARTMENT

In the great rush for Groceries that followed the fire, we made no change in prices, and have already replenished our stock and will continue to sell at usual prices.

TRAINING DOGS.

Poodles the Easiest to Teach, Dachshunds the Most Difficult.

A poodle is the easiest of all to train, and the dachshund is the most difficult, the latter not because he is too stupid, but because he is too smart. A dachshund readily understands what you want him to do, and he can do it, but he thinks he knows a better way, and he invariably tries his way first. As a result, he is never trained in anything that is really difficult. A dachshund seems to be always poking fun at one and getting no little amusement out of it for himself. Collies are easily trained, but they are more or less unreliable, and they are such flatterers. They make you think things are all right and then they run away at the very first opportunity. In preference to other dogs, collies are trained almost exclusively in the militia of Vienna for carrying, in time of war, messages and medicine to and from the camp and the sick soldiers, but they are chosen more for their speed than their faithfulness. Fox terriers are natural acrobats. Within a few weeks one can be trained to turn a somersault. A few weeks more and he will do a double turn. To teach him to do this the trainer calls the animal to him, and as he comes jumping playfully against the trainer he is caught and turned quickly in the air, much to his surprise. He thinks it is play, and he comes jumping up again. After each turn he is given a small piece of meat. In a few weeks he will run up and try independently to do the turn over in the air for the meat, and if he is encouraged it will not be long before he is an accomplished acrobat.—Leslie's Weekly.

On His Dignity.

Mr. Q. Ponze—No, sir; my daughter would starve if she married you. Mr. Nocoyne—Oh, well, if you're the sort of man that would let your own daughter starve I've no desire to become a relative of yours. I withdraw my request, sir.—Cleveland Leader.

Longing For a Soaker.

Hobbs—Queer, isn't it, that it never rains when one wants it to? Dobbs—Garden in need of rain? Hobbs—No, it's myself. My wife gave me a new umbrella for a birthday present, and it hasn't rained since.

Balanced.

The Caller—Your art gallery is a treat. This picture especially is delightful; the values are so well balanced. Mr. Porkham—That's right—frame, $200; picture, same price.—Puck.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

ERRATIC ENGINES.

Locomotives That Act as Though They Were Bewitched.

You never see a ship launched on a Friday, and similarly a new locomotive hardly ever makes a trial trip on that day or on the 13th of the month. Even though the superintendent may jeer at the superstition, yet he knows too well to set it at naught, for just as sailors consider that some ships are unlucky so do train hands credit certain locomotives with a sort of demoniacal possession.

It is certainly very strange the difference that may be observed between two locomotives built from the same plans, at the same time, of similar material. One goes on her way quietly and smoothly, never breaks down, costs little or nothing for repairs. The other causes trouble from the very first, runs off the line, kills the drivers, gets into accidents of all kinds and generally acts as though possessed by some evil spirit.

There was a famous instance some years ago on the South Florida railway. A locomotive killed so many people that she got the name of "the hearse," and no fewer than three engine drivers actually left the employ of the company rather than continue driving her. The odd thing was that she never seemed to injure herself. Eventually the owners were forced to break her up, although she was by no means worn out.

Of actual ghosts in trains or railway engines one very seldom hears.—New York Herald.

The Art of Flattery.

There are those who have an instinct which prompts them to offer verbal caresses to all with whom they come in contact, and there is no doubt that, if such people are gifted at the same time with good hearts, they greatly sweeten life. They do not know how to say, much less write, a disagreeable sentence. They see with their mind's eye the exact spot where a flattering word would produce pleasure or salve a smart, and the temptation to say it is very great. The pleasure they produce delights them, and they study to produce it again. No doubt they practice an art, but not a very black art, and it is difficult not to like them, especially if they are women. Real flattery—the really false article—can hardly exist with a warm heart. Plenty of folly and too much desire to be popular may go with that, but nothing else.—Family Herald.

Church Built of Bulrushes.

The first place of worship in Western Australia was unique in two respects—the materials of which it was built and also the several purposes to which it was devoted. This remarkable building was made at Perth by soldiers shortly after their first arrival in 1829 and was composed almost entirely of bulrushes. In addition to its use on Sundays for divine worship, it occasionally served as an amateur theater during the week and during the whole time as a barracks.

The Pawnbroker's Sign.

The pawnbroker's sign came from the sign used by the Lombard bankers, who took it from the sign used by the Medici family of Florence. The founder of the house had been a medicus, or physician. His descendants became bankers and brokers, and their sign was their ancestor's golden pills. When they became nobles they assumed as arms six golden pills or balls on a blue field.

Sunny People.

The world delights in sunny people. The old are hungering for love more than for bread. The air of joy is very cheap, and if you can help the poor on with a garment of praise it will be better for them than blankets.—Henry Drummond.

The Critical Period.

Duffer—One is born every minute, you know. Puffer—Yes, but they're not listed till they get old enough to think they are not.—Indianapolis Star.

FIRST CARRIAGE IN MAINE.

How a Minister Came to Buy It and Why He Sold It.

The Rev. Francis Winter was a native of Boston and a graduate of Harvard college. He went to Bath early in 1767 and, after preaching on probation for the orthodox church, was invited to settle, which invitation he accepted. He was ordained in the autumn of the same year. He went to Bath on horseback in company with Lemuel Standish. Mr. Winter came from Boston, where he had associated with such eminent men as Adams, Otis and Warren, himself becoming an ardent patriot, taking the lead in the Revolutionary measures adopted in Bath during that memorable period.

Mr. Winter married Miss Abigail Alden in 1768, and it is through her that the Winters of today trace their ancestry back to the "Puritan Maiden of Plymouth."

Three years after the marriage of the Rev. Francis Winter and Abigail Alden they started to visit a sister of Mrs. Winter living in Connecticut and intended to ride all the way on horseback, but Mrs. Winter became so fatigued that Mr. Winter sold one of the horses for a carriage and harness. It was the first carriage that ever came into Maine and was called a chaise. Traveling was so difficult that two negroes were employed to accompany them with shovels and axes to clear the road. Several times the chaise had to be taken apart and lifted over fallen trees. The minister's parishioners thought that it was putting on too much style for their pastor to ride in a carriage, and in consequence Mr. Winter sold it. This was in 1771. It was a two wheeled chaise, the body resting on leather braces, which were attached to wooden springs.—Lewiston Journal.

A DAZZLING EFFECT.

Old Time Illumination With Lanterns and Candles.

In these days of electric lights, with all their capabilities for brilliant illumination, it is amusing to read what the subjects of George II. considered a dazzling effect. A Frenchman visiting in London at the time of the coronation of that monarch in 1727 writes enthusiastically in praise of the lighting of the city as well as of a banquet display.

"Most of the streets," writes M. Saussure, "are wonderfully well lighted. In front of each house hangs a lantern, or large globe of glass, inside of which is placed a lamp which burns all night. Large houses have two of these suspended outside the doors by iron supports. Some even have four."

How one arc light would have dazzled the good people of that day!

"When the coronation procession entered Westminster hall," the writer continues, "the light of day was beginning to fade. Forty chandeliers, in shape like a crown, hung from the ceiling, each having thirty-six wax candles.

"On the king's appearance all suddenly lighted, and every one in the room was filled with astonishment at the wonderful and unexpected illumination. Little cords of cotton wool, imperceptible to the eye, saturated with sulphur of saltpeter, spirits of wine and other ingredients, had been prepared and arranged so as to carry the flame rapidly from one candle to another. The arrangement had been so skillfully prepared that scarcely a candle failed to take fire."

For Dosing Oneself.

A physician recommends rochelle salts for amateur doctoring. He says that it is an excellent thing, several times a day, to take as much of the salts as may be put on a cent in a little water. That will sweeten the stomach and act as a very desirable spring medicine. He also speaks highly of soda, having no patience with those timid people who have an idea that it is a dangerous dose, doing some vague harm to the coating of the intestines.

"Why, everything we eat, almost, has soda in it," he cried in disdain. "It is an admirable thing to take half rochelle salts and half bicarbonate of soda, as directed, several times a day. I know of few gentler and still more beneficent general medicines."

A Poisonous Frog.

People in general look upon all species of the frog as being perfectly harmless. Should you be traveling in New Granada (United States of Colombia), however, you would do well to let a certain little tree croaker severely alone. He secretes a poison equally as deadly as that of the rattlesnake. It exudes from his skin in the shape of a milky liquid and is used by the natives as a poison for their arrows.

Write as You Feel.

If you would write to any purpose, you must be perfectly free from within. Give yourself the natural rein; think on no pattern, no patron, no paper, no press, no public; think on nothing, but follow your impulses. Give yourself as you are—what you are and how you see it. Every man sees with his own eyes or does not see at all.—Emerson.

Wouldn't Trust Him.

"Of course," said the sarcastic man, "you always do your wife's bidding."

"Gracious! No!" replied Mr. Henpeck. "She wouldn't let me. When she goes to an auction sale she never takes me with her."—Philadelphia Press.

Contradictory.

"Has your son arrived at years of discretion?"

"Oh, yes. He's about to be married."

"How you contradict yourself!"—Cleveland Leader.

All pain must be to teach some good in the end.—Browning.

ANCIENT WATER VILLAGES.

Relic of Old Customs Prevailing In the "Spreewald."

One of the most interesting regions in the "old fatherland" is the so called "Spreewald," the forest of the Spree, situated not far from the German capital, in the province of Brandenburg. Each village is a little Venice, every house a little island, and these islets are connected by bridges sufficiently raised to allow boats to pass under them. Most of the houses, with their barns and stables, rest on piles, and there is generally a strip of artificial terra firma either in front or at the rear of every building. By means of these land strips and of the bridges the slender land communication is kept throughout the district, but most of the business and amusement are carried on through the canals, which not only form the main highways, but penetrate and cross and recross the whole region. It is on these lagoons that all traffic is conducted in boats during the period from spring when the last vestiges of frost and ice are disappearing until the end of autumn. You see the letter carrier shoot up and down the canals, performing his duties in his frail craft; the police glide leisurely along the banks, watching everything going on; peasants bring the products of their toil to the nearest towns; children go to and from school; young mothers, dressed in their Sunday clothes, are rowed to church, carrying in their arms a small, queer looking bundle from which two large eyes in a tiny face stare at the stranger in wonderment—baby is going to be baptized, an important moment with this strongly religious people.—Technical World Magazine.

DREAM MYSTERY.

The Events That May Be Crowded Into a Few Seconds.

The duration of a dream is so seldom accurately measured that a story published in the St. Louis Medical Record is worth repeating.

The writer, a doctor, was seized with an uncontrollable drowsiness during a call and was struggling to keep awake when he was asked by his companion, "How long may you stay in B.?" His answer, which came promptly enough, was, "That depends on the Western Union," and, catching himself, he explained that he was expecting a telegram. In fact, however, his answer related to the facts of a dream which had been sandwiched between the two parts of the sentence.

After hearing the words "How long" the doctor had dozed off, dreamed that after long and tedious experiments he had invented a wonderful apparatus for holding telegraph poles in a vertical position, had negotiated with the postal company for its sale, but unsuccessfully, and had finally gone to the authorities of the other company. They, in the dream, told him they were considering a German invention for the same purpose, and the dreamer crossed the ocean to examine the rival device, returned, explained the differences to the intending purchaser and was writing a reply when he woke in time to hear the end of his companion's question.

The events of the dream had apparently consumed months, yet the actual time that elapsed was merely that required for uttering about four short words.

Precedent For "Governess."

Albert VII., archduke of Austria, married Isabella Clara Eugenie, infanta of Spain, who brought to him as dowry the sovereignty of the Low Countries, etc. When Philip IV. of Spain ascended the throne in 1621 he took from his aunt the sovereignty of the Low Countries, but left her the title of governess. Her husband died soon after, whereon she took the veil, though still retaining the reins of government. She died at Brussels in 1633, aged sixty-six. Here there is precedent for the use of the word governess when a lady holds the post.—London Notes and Queries.

Paid For the Opinion.

Shortly after Chief Justice Purley of the court of appeals of New Hampshire had retired from the bench and resumed the practice of his profession a man called on him to get his opinion in a certain matter. After stating his case clearly he said, "Well, judge, what do you think of my case?" The judge promptly replied, "I think you are a scoundrel." "How much do I owe you for that opinion?" inquired the client. "Ten dollars," demanded the judge. The fee was promptly paid.

Rhodesia's Largest Nugget.

Weighing 21.62 ounces, a gold nugget which measures five and a half inches in length and three inches in width was recently found near Bulawayo. It is believed to be the largest yet found in Rhodesia, and is now in the British South Africa company's museum at 2 London Wall buildings, E. C.—London Mail.
